"As we build, let us think that we build forever. Let it not be for present delight, or present use alone; let it be such work as our descendants will thank us for, and let us think as we lay stone upon stone, that a time is to come when these stones will be sacred because our hands have laid them, and that men will say as they look upon the labor and wrought substance of them - 'See! This our fathers did for us.'" -- Ruskin.

"The kind of person you are depends upon your forebears, for generations back, just like a plant." -- Thomas Edison (Statement made on his 81st birthday, Feb. 11, 1923.)

TO MY ANCESTORS.

I see you toiling down the tedious years,
You bearded, bent and gaunt old pioneers,
Sowing and reaping, sowing once again,
In patience for an unborn race of men.

I see you struggling in the wilderness,
Where failure meant starvation, and success
A cabin in the clearing, rough-hewn, rude;
Garments of homespun and the humblest food.

Traditions scarcely tell me whence you came;
I only know a few of you by name;
I only know you lived and multiplied,
Quite profligate in progeny, and died.

Yet, in my heart, I know that most of you
Were strong and steadfast, and that one or two,
At least, had weaknesses that still may be Traced in the trend of atavistic me.

One was a rather worthless wight, I fear,
Who, when the bluebird whistled, spring was near,
Forsook his plow -- a shiftless sluggard one --
And roamed the woods alone with rod and gun.

And one a gentle dreamer was, I know,
Who, lured by shadows, let the substance go.
'Twas he who dared the raging western sea.
I'm glad he handed down his dreams to me!

INTRODUCTION

That a record of ancestry is considered of great importance is manifested in the Biblical account of seventy-six unbroken generations from Adam to Christ.

Though comparatively small in numbers, the Griffith Family has contributed generously with brain, brawn and blood to the progress of the British Empire and the United States. It has distinguished itself in war and in the varied pursuits of peace.

Pride of family, perhaps even more than pride of country, is a commendable trait and should be cultivated. The Griffiths have just cause to be proud of their family history, traditions and standards.

There are in the United States Towns bearing the family name as follows: Griffith: Ind.; Griffithville: Ark., W. Va.

There are also in the United States numerous counties, townships, streets and avenues bearing the name "Griffith."

While this collection of data is concerned with those members of the family who have been statesmen, military heroes, scientists, writers and captains of industry, it is also intended as a memorial of men and women whose very names are forgotten today; who, unnoted then, as they are unremembered now, faced and solved the problems of humble living, laughed at fate and refused to be broken by misfortune, who gave sturdy children to the world --- and died!

It pleased them that, as a result of their sacrifice and toil, their progeny might have more comforts, increased opportunities, and a greater freedom. An affectionate regard to their memory is natural to the heart. To resurrect their memories out of the mists of time, to link their lives with the evolution of events and to assign to them their share in the wonderful past should be a very lofty aspiration to every member of the Griffith family.

The data in this "volume" has been gathered from authentic sources, as shown on the last few pages. The compiler hopes and believes that in producing this Record he is bringing to the Griffith Family information which will be of great interest and value to them.

In reference No. 26 we find the following regarding the origin and meaning of the family name Griffith: Ept. (Welsh). A variant of Griffin. Griffin means: the son of 'Griffin' or 'Griffith', the name of many Welsh princes. Variations are: Griffiths.

Unless otherwise shown, the persons in this material whose names are accompanied by three figures are children of the immediately preceding persons bearing immediately preceding numbers. All persons in each group bearing the same letter as a part of their numbers, are directly related. The generations of the descendants of those bearing numbers of three figures are represented as follows:

Generations.... 1st	2nd	3rd	4th	5th
Symbols.....(1), etc.	(A), etc.	(c), etc.	1, etc.	A, etc.
Generations.... 6th	7th	8th	9th	10th
Symbols.....a, etc.	(I), etc.	(i), etc.	I, etc.	i, etc.

Abbreviations: Add., address; b., born; ch., children; coll. College; d., died; d.y., died young; dau., daughter; grad., graduated; univ., university; m., married; s., son.

THE GRIFFITH COAT OF ARMS

A Coat of Arms is an emblem or device "traditionally inherited", and originally bestowed, usually with other honors and privileges, by royalty, in recognition of meritorious deeds. For centuries the Coat of Arms has been a distinctive mark of families of noble blood.

Coats of Arms were often used for purposes of identification and recognition on the field of battle as well as in civil life. To most Americans of today a Coat of Arms is understood to be a "family relic" or an "emblem of family pride." This is especially true if there is no genuine claim to a family Arms.

It is claimed by some writers that Coats of Arms, in a crude form, were used by Noah's sons after the flood. There are records of other Coats of Arms at different periods of ancient history. Heraldry, however, as we know it today, did not become of much importance until soon after the invasion of England by William the Conqueror, A.D. 1066. Heraldry became of general interest at about the time of the Crusades.

In 1528 Henry VIII, King of England, appointed a commission to visit each country in his kingdom, and summon his subjects of rank to appear for examination as to their heraldic rights. This procedure was repeated at irregular intervals and a record, known as "visitations", kept.

The ancient Griffith Coat of Arms which is correctly described below has been in the Griffith family for many centuries. It was, in its original form, used by GRIFFITH AP CYNN, KING OF NORTH WALES, A.D. 1079. He was a descendant of ANARWOD, KING OF WALES, eldest son of RHODI MAWR, KING OF WALES, A.D. 843 (founder of the Royal Tribes; many princes of North Wales derive from him). Griffith ap Cynan had a son, Owen, King of North Wales. The latter had a descendant Llewellyn ap Griffith, Prince of North Wales, slain on the Wye, 1272. (See Burke's General Armory).

It is described in "Burke's General Armory," "Burke's Landed Gentry," "Burke's Peerage and Baronetage," and other reliable works on heraldry, as shown below, in some cases accompanied by illustrations and pedigrees.

Heraldic Language	English Translation
Arms: Gules, 3 loincels passant in pale argent, armed azure.	On a red shield three young loins in a walking position, one above another--loins silver with blue paws.
Crest: A demi-lion rampant sable, armed gules.	A half-lion rampant, black with red paws.
Motto: Virtus omnia Nobilitat.	Virtue ennobles all things.

As a matter of personal taste, which is permissible, some members of the family vary the shape of the shield and of other features of the Arms. The mantle and helmet which are sometimes seen with Coats of Arms are merely ornamental and may be correctly included or omitted.

Besides its family significance and inspiration this Coat of Arms painted in full brilliant colors makes an excellent mural ornament and inspires the admiration and comment of all who see it.

Sir Bernard Burke, of Heralds College, London, said "Heraldry is prized by all who can show honorable ancestry or wish to found honorable families."

ANCIENT GRIFFITH FAMILIES

With Descendants of Later Generations.

Some of the members of the Griffith family recorded in this collection were members either of the peerage and baronetage or of the landed gentry of Great Britain. For all Americans of the name their history holds a peculiar charm, since there is about them something of the glamour of antiquity and the romantic appeal of the country which, not so many generations ago, our ancestors called home.

In these pedigrees are recorded the lives of many men who were or are prominent in the civil and military life of the empire. In many cases it was the younger sons of these families who migrated to the American colonies.

In "Burke's General Armory," including the edition of 1921, titled Griffith families are mentioned under headings and in the order as follows:

Minster Grillegh, co. Londonberry, bart.

Bristol.

Penrhyn, co. Carnarvon, Wales.

(Griffith ap Llewellyn) son of Hukyn ap Howell ap Yerworth, which Howell altered his paternal coat of arms. He was descended from Huw ap Mynddelin, "one of ye 15 tribes in account amongst ye Brittaines."

Lord of Ross and Rhyonog.

Fun. Ent. of Judge Griffith, buried in Christ Church, Dublin, 1666.

Some of the ancient Griffith estates in Wales have been in the uninterrupted possession of the family for many centuries.

There was a Griffith, King of Wales, who married a sister of Edwyn, King of the East Saxons.

See under the article regarding the Griffith Coat of Arms.

William Griffith came from co. Cardigan, Wales and settled in Oneida Co., N.Y., 1721, and had numerous descendants.

DISTINGUISHED GRIFFITHS, PAST GENERATIONS.

A colorful procession marching down the centuries---the Griffiths whose achievements are here briefly mentioned were among the distinguished personages of their day.

Alexander Griffith: d. 1690; a Welsh divine. During the Civil War he was deprived of his livings on account of his loyalty to the king, but his rights were later restored; author of several political and religious publications.

David: Episcopal clergyman: b. N.Y., 1742; rector of Alexandria Christ Church, 1779; member of first Va. Convention of Clerical and Lay Deputies; Bishop, 1786; intimate friend of General Washington.

Edmund: 1570; 1637; bishop of Bangor; b. Carnarvonshire, Wales; Fourth son of GRUFFYD ad SION of Cernamluch. of an ancient house. Among his brothers was Hugh Griffith, "a very proper man, of a comley tall personage who became 'the worthiest most valiant captain of any nation that was at sea.'" Became canon of Bangor, 1606; rector of Llanbedrog, 1604; buried in the choir of his cathedral.

Edward: 1790; 1858; naturalist; s. of William Griffith, of Stanwell, Middlesex; was solicitor and master in the court of Common pleas; one of the original members of the Zoological Society, and a fellow of the Linnean, Antiquaries and Royal Societies. Wrote and published over fifteen volumes on zoology, some of them being extensively illustrated with colored plates.

Mrs. Elizabeth (her maiden name, also, was Griffith): 1720K; 1793; playwright and novelist; b. Glamorganshire, Wales; m. Richard Griffith (1714?; 1837, a "poor Irishman of good family"); soon after marriage she appeared on the stage in Dublin; played at Covent Garden Theater, 1753 and 1754. Wrote and published several poems and novels.

George: 1601; 1666; Bishop of St. Asaph; b. at Penrhyn, Carnarvonshire; became a distinguished tutor at Oxford; a popular preacher; urged the necessity of a new edition of the Welsh Bible; is said to have undertaken the translation of the revised prayer-book into Welsh.

John: 1622; 1700; general Baptist minister; practised medicine for a time; after the Restoration he frequently got into trouble as a conventicle preacher, and persistently declined the oath of allegiance. "His difficulty was that the terms of the oath bound him to obey laws not then in being, and future sovereigns who might prove papists." Was imprisoned for seventeen months (1661), and again committed, 1688, and is said to have spent about fourteen years in jail. He appears to have been free from molestation after James's declaration for liberty of conscience April 11, 1687; a useful minister after liberation.

John: 1714; 1798; independent minister; b. London; became a follower of Whitfield. His ministry was successful till a dispute with one of his deacons led him to withdraw, 1758, with part of his congregation; the new congregation grew; later became minister of another congregation; published, 1759, "A Brand Plucked out of the Fire."

Matthew: 1599?; 1665; royalist divine; for preaching and publishing, 1642, a sermon entitled "A Pathetic Persuasion to Pray for Public Peace," he was sequestered from his livings and imprisoned. On regaining his liberty "he took refuge with King Charles I, by whom he was made a royal chaplain;" later made D.D. at Oxford, 1643. He fought in defense of Basing House, 1645, at the storming of which his daughter, by her taunts, provoked the roundheads to kill her.

Murice: d. 1558; bishop of Rochester; b. Wales; during the reign of Queen Mary he took part in the consecration of several bishops.

Moses: 1724; 1785; physician; son of Edward Griffith; b. Shropshire; practised for many years in London; wrote "Practical Observations on the Cure of the Hectic and Slow Fevers and the Pulmonary Consumption;" credited with the invention of the useful compound iron mixture of the Pharmacopoeia.

Moses: fl. 1769; 1809; draughtsman and engraver; b. parish of Bryn Groer in Llein, Carnarvonshire.

Piers: d. 1628; naval adventurer; son of Sir Roes Griffith of Penrhyn (sheriff of Carnarvonshire in 1567); grandson of Sir William Griffith (Chamberlain of North Wales); fitted out a ship against the Spanish Armada, 1588; honorably received by Sir Francis Drake; shared in the honor of the defeat of the Armada; went with Drake and Sir Walter Raleigh to cruise upon the Spanish Coast, and parted with Sir Francis Drake at the mouth of the Gulf of Magellan; was accused of continuing attack upon Spanish ships and possessions after the proclamation of peace, and is said to have been obliged to sell or mortgage his estate in order to purchase his pardon or to defray the expense of his prosecution. Some of his recorded experiences based on tradition. Known in some circles as "Griffith, the Welsh pirate." Was buried in Westminster Abbey.

Richard, M.D.: 1635?; 1691; physician; on the recommendation of Cromwell and the council of state he was appointed by the parliamentary visitors to a fellowship at University College, Oxford.

Richard: d. 1719; naval captain and hero; said to have been a son of Richard Griffith (a captain in the Navy); in 1691 he was commander of a small merchant ship which was captured by a French privateer, and which he recaptured in the night with the aid of only one boy, by overpowering and throwing overboard the sleeping watch. For this exploit he was ordered by their majesties a gold chain and medal and appointed captain of the galley "Mary;" later commander of several other vessels; was in numerous naval battles and had more than one narrow escape from shipwreck.

Richard: d. 1788; author; elder son of Edward Griffith. His grandfather, Richard Griffith, was rector of Coleraine and dean of Ross; family originally resided in Carnarvonshire, Wales, later settling in Ireland; about 1760 he was appointed to a political post by the Duke of Bedford, lord-lieutenant of Ireland; wrote "The Triumvirate," "The Koran," "Variety," etc.

Richard (son of Richard, d. 1788, immediately above): 1752; 1820; made early in life a fortune in trade in the East Indies; settled in co. Kildare, Ireland and was deputy-governor of the county; also Member of Irish Parliament.

Sir Richard John: 1784; 1873; geologist and civil engineer; first baronet, son of Richard Griffith, of Millicent, Naas, co. Kildare; editor "Journal of Natural Philosophy;" authority on mining; appointed mining engineer and professor of geology to the Royal Dublin Society; government inspector of mines in Ireland; prepared a geological map of Ireland, which was published in 1815, and for which he was awarded a medal by the Geological Society; numbered among his friends the chief scientific men of his time.

Robert Eglesfield: noted physician; b. Penna., 1798; professor of medicine, Va. Univ.; noted as a botanist and conchologist; author of numerous medical works.

Walter: d. 1779; captain in the Navy; "of an old family long settled in Merionethshire. In September 1759, he was in command of the frigate Gibraltar, attached to the grand fleet off Brest, France. He fell in with the French fleet, secured valuable information which he immediately communicated to his superiors. His conduct on the occasion won high praise and a promise of high favor; commanded other vessels and was in several engagements; killed in an encounter with the French in Fort Royal Bay.

William: 1810; 1845; botanist; son of Thomas Griffith; b. near Petersham, Surrey; assistant surgeon in the service of the East India Co.; India was the scene of his marvelous labours; accumulated a large collection of specimens in every branch of natural history, especially botany; underwent many hardships in his explorations.

William Pettit: 1815; 1864; architect and archaeologist; s. of John William Griffith, architect; contributed, at age twenty, notes to Loudon's Architectural Magazine, continuing for many years; exhibited architectural designs in the Royal Academy; awarded the institute silver medal for an "Essay on the Principles or Laws which Govern the Formation of Architectural Decorations and Ornaments;" honorary member Liverpool Architectural Society. Among the works executed under Griffith's superintendence are: the reparation of St. John's Church, Clerkenwell; the restoration of St. John's Gate; the rebuilding of the spire and the erection of a font for St. James Church, Clerkenwell, etc. Published several works on architectural subjects.

GRIFFITHS IN THE AMERICAN REVOLUTION.

Following is a roster of the patriots by the name of Griffith who fought in the cause of freedom during the Revolutionary War. Much greater was the number of non-combatants behind the lines; some of whom were engaged in fashioning bullets from melted metal, often destroying heirlooms of value from across the sea; some in knitting warm garments for the men at the front; others by personal sacrifices and prayers, and sometimes even by secret intrigue, aiding the warriors.

It is a very common mistake to suppose that the only way to get a good result is to use a large quantity of the reagent. In fact, the best results are usually obtained by using a small quantity of the reagent, and by allowing the reaction to proceed for a long time.

The first step in the process is to weigh out a small quantity of the reagent, and to add it to a solution of the substance to be tested. The solution should be made up of a known volume of water, and the reagent should be added in small portions, with stirring, until the reaction has proceeded for a long time.

The second step is to allow the reaction to proceed for a long time. This is usually done by placing the mixture in a water bath, and by allowing it to remain there for a long time. The temperature of the water bath should be kept at a constant value, and the mixture should be stirred from time to time.

The third step is to add a small quantity of a second reagent, and to allow the reaction to proceed for a long time. This is usually done by adding the second reagent to the mixture, and by allowing it to remain there for a long time. The temperature of the water bath should be kept at a constant value, and the mixture should be stirred from time to time.

The fourth step is to add a small quantity of a third reagent, and to allow the reaction to proceed for a long time. This is usually done by adding the third reagent to the mixture, and by allowing it to remain there for a long time. The temperature of the water bath should be kept at a constant value, and the mixture should be stirred from time to time.

The fifth step is to add a small quantity of a fourth reagent, and to allow the reaction to proceed for a long time. This is usually done by adding the fourth reagent to the mixture, and by allowing it to remain there for a long time. The temperature of the water bath should be kept at a constant value, and the mixture should be stirred from time to time.

The sixth step is to add a small quantity of a fifth reagent, and to allow the reaction to proceed for a long time. This is usually done by adding the fifth reagent to the mixture, and by allowing it to remain there for a long time. The temperature of the water bath should be kept at a constant value, and the mixture should be stirred from time to time.

The seventh step is to add a small quantity of a sixth reagent, and to allow the reaction to proceed for a long time. This is usually done by adding the sixth reagent to the mixture, and by allowing it to remain there for a long time. The temperature of the water bath should be kept at a constant value, and the mixture should be stirred from time to time.

APPENDIX II. ON THE USE OF THE SPECTROSCOPE.

The first step in the process is to prepare a solution of the substance to be tested. This is usually done by weighing out a small quantity of the substance, and by adding it to a known volume of water. The solution should be made up of a known volume of water, and the substance should be added in small portions, with stirring, until the reaction has proceeded for a long time.

PROMINENT AMERICAN GRIFFITHS OF TODAY

True to the traditions and standards of their noble past the American Griffiths of today "carry on" in the fields of endeavor. in which their forefathers achieved distinction. The biographies of the living, as well as the rolls of the dead, testify that the traits of character and the ambition to achieve were passed on by the Griffith fathers from generation to generation. The states or countries mentioned at the end of most of the paragraphs represent present places of abode.

Armond Harrold Griffith: museum director.

Benjamin: lawyer.

"GOLD MINES" OF GRIFFITH DATA.

A wealth of material regarding the Griffith family--genealogical, biographical and historical--is found in the publications listed below, most of which are copyrighted. A-References consist of volumes covering the Griffith family almost exclusively which show large numbers of descendants listed in order. Practically all of these volumes will be found in the Genealogical Sections of the Library of Congress, Washington, D.C., and of the Public Library, New York City, and some of them will be found in any genealogical library.

Most of the B-References are general biographical or historical works, etc., which include material on hundreds of family names. Nearly all of the works of this class can be found in any large public library. Figures in parentheses following some of the titles under B., below, indicate the number of persons by the name Griffith who are specifically mentioned.
